TEN CENTS PER WEEK

SOLID FIELD OF ICE IS FLOATING DOWN THE RIVER

Gorge Breaks at Carrsville and Reaches Paducah This Morning.

Paducah Harbor is Protected by the Island.

TENNESSEE RIVER IS OPEN.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 11. (Special)—Damage for a half million was done by breaking of gorges in the lower Ohio. The towboat Lader with a tow broke loose at Brandenburg. She caught in the ice and is floating down the Ohio. She may be destroyed.

Drifting in a solid field with the current between three and four miles an hour huge cakes of ice from the gorge that went out at Carrsville at 2:30 o'clock yesterday, reached Paducah at 1 o'clock this morning and are passing rapidly down with the swelling stream.

The Paducah harbor fortunately is protected by nature as the Tennessee shore for some distance down the Ohio. For this reason the wharves and steamboats moored at the levee are in no danger and the Tennessee is clear of ice.

After holding two weeks the gorge gave way with a crash. Ice in big chunks were swept down with the current, but the rapidly rising river has allowed it to pass on without clogging. A stage of fifteen feet was attained here today by the Ohio and the idea of a blockage is not conceived.

When news reached here yesterday all precautions were made to make boats safe and barges were gotten from dangerous spots. All along the Ohio from Carrsville to Cairo, Ill., the news was received with alarm. At Cave-in-Rock the tug boat, Enoch Taylor, with a derrick boat and barges are said to have been swept ashore by the ice and damaged about $500. At Mt. Vernon, Ind., yesterday ice floes swept down the river and caught the towboat Love and two barges. At Brandenburg the U. S. dredge boat Walker was swept by the gorge giving way at Wolfsville and was crushed to bits.

A report was received here today that two of the West Kentucky Coal company's barges at DeKoven were caught in the ice and are being swept downstream at the mercy of the ice.

With the exception of boats moving in the Tennessee river, navigation was shut down here today. No ice is being carried through the chute at the head of the island and craft in the Tennessee are not in danger. The George Cowling was the only boat to brave the ice floes today and made her regular trips between here and Metropolis. For the first time since the ice began passing here the ferryboat Bettie Owen threw up the sponge and tied up, the Cowling handling much of her ferry business.

Rivermen here expressed a belief that the situation would be better tomorrow.

He Pays His Fine.

Roy Rudolph, who was fined $250 last week in circuit court for suffering gambling, paid his fine last night after the commonwealth reduced it to $118. Rudolph is a young man well known in the county, and is engaged in the insurance business. He was taken in custody yesterday by the sheriff, but succeeded in paying his fine last night.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FOR ROBERT MOSHELL

Robert E. L. Coshell, who conducts a saloon on North Fourth street, formerly proprietor of the Hotel Belvedere, through his attorney, R. T. Lightfoot, filed a petition in bankruptcy in federal court today, giving his liabilities as $113,325.29. There are no assets. Among the largest creditors are the Paducah Brewing company, $600; J. R. Smith & Son, $431; Rhodes-Burford & company, $475; and J. A. Rudy & Sons, $168.50. Claims of Rhodes-Burford and Rudy are secured as well as the Brewing company. A debt of $2,000 to his wife is unsecured.

Paducah Now Only Salesplace of Planters' Protective Association in State—Will Increase Trade

Must Have Larger Warehouse Here in Which to Store Tobacco Shipped in From Large Territory.

Paducah is the only sales place of the Planters' Protective association in Kentucky and will handle close to twelve million pounds of tobacco this season, according to Chairman John McKeage, of the county committee, who gave out an interview to a reporter for The Evening Sun today. Tobacco to be handled here will be shipped immediately from the eleven counties of this district, necessitating the opening of another warehouse in Paducah to accommodate the crop. Negotiations are under way and the Auditorium rink, Tenth street and Broadway, is spoken of as a probable location.

In order to concentrate the western district the executive board has abolished the old sales places at Hopkinsville, Mayfield, Russellville, Murray and Cadiz, and the headquarters, formerly at Guthrie, Ky., has been moved to Clarksville, Tenn., the largest salesplace of the association.

As a result all the tobacco in western Kentucky, grown in eleven different counties, will come to Paducah to be sold, increasing the sales here millions of pounds. Although there is some surprise over the change, there is much gratification that this city has been designated to receive such an immense amount of tobacco.

With the abolition of the five sales places of the state and the change in headquarters, Paducah, Clarksville, Tenn., and Springfield, Tenn., are the only sales places of the association and will care for all the pledged crop.

Mr. McKeage said the majority of the crop would be shipped to Paducah for sale and for storing the hogheads no additional warehouse is necessary. Mr. M. M. Tucker is in charge of the warehouse, covering half a block between First and Second streets along Jefferson street, and he will superintend the new warehouse besides. The capacity of the local warehouse is 4,000 hogheads, while if the Auditorium rink is leased and converted into a warehouse, it will hold the remainder. However, there has been no definite decision as to the location.

Shipments of tobacco are expected here next week from all counties. They are Calloway, Ballard, Carlisle, Marshall, Graves, Hickman, Fulton, Caldwell and Livingston, and Obion, Tenn. Mr. U. N. Farmer, of Murray, the new salesman for Paducah, will arrive next week to take charge of the salesrooms, that have been practically closed several months.

The Sales Places.

In speaking of the importance of the three present sales places Mr. McKeage said Clarksville handled most of the tobacco and last year 13,000 hogheads were sold there. Springfield, Tenn., ranks next with Clarksville, selling about the same amount while Paducah falls behind both, only a fraction. Last year Paducah handled about 8,460 hogheads while this year she will sell many more. The amount to be handled at Springfield and Clarksville will increase this season. A small amount of the crop will come here from Tennessee, however.

Psychic Mystery No Longer Mystifies Him

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 11.—Jesse H. Tourville, psychic expert, who recently proposed a plan to dispel the fogs of London, and also claimed he invented a storage battery of unusual power, shot himself at a downtown corner today. The bullet went through his stomach, and hospital physicians say he probably will die. He had a varied career. He recently lodged his brothers in a bookstore, where he worked as salesman. Financial difficulties and separation from his wife, are supposed to be the cause for the deed.

ELECTION RIOT.

Boston, Jan. 11.—Soon after the polling booths in Boston's city election opened today a riot broke out at the polls in Ward eight. An inspector was severely beaten and police hurried to the scene. The riot added excitement to the election in all parts of the city.

mittie is regarded as practically the severing of relations with Kentucky, Paducah being the only market retained in the state. What prompted the action of the committee is not known, but some believe that it was the wholesale selling of tobacco in the loose state to the many important dealers who were offering flattering prices and cash payment for everything in sight. The association has held steadfastly to the demand that tobacco sold by it should be prized and should go through the regular warehouse channels. By this method the farmer is forced to wait two months or more before he can sell and in the meantime he is probably forced to borrow money.

It is believed that the association decided to cut loose from the sections where the loose leaf selling had been most general, as farmers largely availed themselves of the opportunity to get good cash prices on the loose leaf floors. A reconsideration of the action has been rumored, but it is not likely to take place, as full arrangements have been made and officers at the places abandoned let out.

A meeting of the McCracken county committee will be held here the second Saturday of next month, but nothing of especial importance will come up.

Sidewalk Caves In.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The sidewalk on the State street side of the Boston store caved in at noon. The police announced one dead four seriously injured. Thirty went down. The dead man is "Frenchy" Pinaud, who was working under the sidewalk when a piece of flagging crushed him. Three women, and one man were seriously hurt.

LARGE FACTORY SEEKS LOCATION

COMMERCIAL CLUB WILL MEET TONIGHT TO CONSIDER PROPOSITION.

Paducah may secure a large factory. For that purpose of inquiring into the proposition the Commercial club will meet tonight. A man from a northern state, whose name is withheld, is in the city, and will confer with the members of the club tonight.

At present he has a factory that is doing a successful business, but he desires to increase the capacity of the plant, and is seeking a new location with better facilities. He has the plans drawn for the new plant, which will be 400 feet long. Many people would be employed, and it would afford a good market for growers in the vicinity of Paducah.

AUDITOR REPORTS CITY'S FINANCES FOR FISCAL YEAR

Taxes and Licenses Increase, Floating Debt Wiped Out, Balance Left.

Only Overdrafts Caused by Improvements.

HOW DEPARTMENTS OPERATE

If all private business concerns could show as clean a sheet financially as the city of Paducah does at the end of the fiscal and calendar year, 1909, there would be no cause for worry about prosperity, according to the report just completed by Prof. John D. Smith, acting auditor, and City Treasurer George Walters.

With few departments overdrawn, and these to meet unanticipated contingencies, such as the smallpox epidemic, or the permanent improvements to the light plant, the Riverside hospital, the new fire station and the city hall addition, the city closes with an actual cash balance of $36,342.39, and this is after paying off the last of the floating debt—$11,024.47.

In conclusion Professor Smith says there are on the books no bills payable for renewal and no borrowed money. Professor Smith said City Auditor Alex Kirkland has kept a clean set of books and the accounts are in first class shape.

The details of the report are interesting:

The bonded indebtedness of the city is shown to be $535,400. Against this there is deposited at 4 per cent interest a sinking fund of $54,855.42. The license collections increased 33 per cent during the year and the tax collections increased 16 per cent.

The schools received, including unpaid balance, $76,781.52 from the revenues collected in 1909.

A summary of the city finances shows:

Disbursements.

The way departments kept within their appropriations is responsible to a great extent for the year's balance. For instance, the street department, while making permanent improvements, trying the experiment with oil, fixing the levee and paying attention to the dust nuisance actually saved $10,362.40 out of its appropriation for the year. The police department spent less than its appropriation by $328.11, and the old contingent fund, on which extraordinary drafts usually fall, went through the year with a balance of $7,463.86 to the good. Most other departments showed a slight balance. The city hospital made permanent improvements; the fire department bought a large amount of hose; the addition to the city hall was erected; the lighting plant built a stack and installed a

CHIEF DIES.
Butte, Mont., Jan. 11.—Charles, eighty years old, hereditary Flathead chief, is dead at his home at Arlee. He was last of the great chieftains. He left much property.

London, Jan. 11.—Today's campaigning is decidedly in favor of the Liberals throughout England. They claim a solid majority north and west of a line drawn from Plymouth to Birmingham, to King's Lynn. They admit the outcome is doubtful in eastern England. London and South England are betting even, though the Conservatives' claims are stronger. Conservative leaders got to work today to undo the harm wrought there by the unwise utterances, and tactics, of peers whose denouncing the land tax features of the budget and the Liberal demand for the abolition of the house of lords. Conservatives now ignore these issues, concentrating their energy on the "German peril." Betting on the stock exchange still slightly favors the Conservatives.

Aldermanic Committees.

Democratic aldermen met last night, and held their caucus for the committees. On all of the committees in their power to appoint two Democrats and one Republican was placed. The Democrats were kind enough to place Alderman Will Farley as chairman of the relief committee, a committee that rarely makes a report on anything.

The committees named by the Democrats are:

Ordinance—Lackey, Potter and Hank.
Street—Potter, Stewart and Van Meter.
License—Lackey, Stewart and Oehl schlaeger.
Railroad, telegraph and telephone—Potter, Lackey and Oehlschlaeger.
Light and water—Stewart, Lackey and Van Meter.
Hospital, sewer, and sanitary—Stewart, Lackey and Hank.
Relief—Farley, Potter and Lackey.
Al Foreman, president of the council, has not announced his committees and probably will not do so until the next meeting.

THE COAL SHORTAGE IN CHICAGO IS RELIEVED

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The shortage of coal is relieved and the weather is moderating. Railroads make coal preferred freight, even above live stock, and 120,000 tons arrived today. Normal conditions are promised in a few days.

AVIATORS FIND EVERYTHING WELL

EXPECT TO BREAK HIGH AND ENDURANCE RECORDS AT LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, Jan. 11.—The feature of today's aviation program is speed races among Curtiss, Paulhan, Masson, Mtschall, Hamilton and Willard. Climatic conditions are excellent. Paulhan has high hopes of establishing a height record, possibly 4,000 feet. Willard's friends claim he made a mile and 650 yards in 1:23, a new world's record, but experts, who watched the flight, say he covered only a mile. The record probably will not be allowed.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION BUYS FOOD WHOLESALE

LaCrosse, Wis., Jan. 11.—To relieve laborers of the high cost of living the central trades and labor council bought a carload of flour to sell to members at wholesale prices, saving them 15 cents a sack. It will buy other necessities at wholesale and distribute by the same plan. It intends to establish a co-operative bakery.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS WILL CELEBRATE ON ANNIVERSARY

Committee is Appointed to Make Arrangements for Date in February.

Odd Fellows Will Banquet Tonight.

FRATERNITY BOARD MEETS

The local lodge Knights of Pythias at the regular weekly meeting Monday night decided to hold a celebration of the anniversary of the order's institution some time in February. The date of the anniversary falls on February 19, but the celebration does not necessarily have to be held at that time. A committee was appointed to make all the necessary arrangements, and the occasion will be one in keeping with the lodge's reputation for holding pleasant social meetings.

Odd Fellows' Banquet.

The Odd Fellows will have "big doings" in Mechanicsburg tonight. The regular meeting of the lodge will be held, with the first degree, as a special feature, followed by a social session and smoker. The Union degree team will exemplify the ritual. This will be the first visit made since its organization. All the members of the order in the city have been extended an invitation and there will be a large attendance. The session will close with a banquet.

Fraternity Directors Meet.

The board of directors of the Masonic and Odd Fellows building will meet tonight at the Fraternity building to elect officers for the ensuing year. Tonight is also the regular meeting night of the Royal Arch chapter.

Soldier Hanged for Murder.

Kansas City, Jan. 11.—Private Charles O'Neill, of the Fourteenth infantry, sentenced by the federal court at Kansas City, Kas., today was hanged for the murder of Minnie Scharbora, a French maid employed by a Fort Leavenworth officer.

Police to Stop Snowballing.

Complaints were made to Chief of Police Singery today over the obnoxious "fun" of school boys in snowballing everyone passing a school house during recess, noon hours and at the dismissal of school in the afternoon. At the request of many the chief will have a patrolman on hand at each school at these hours to quell the practice and protect passerby.

She Was a Prisoner.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The DeJanon girl told Inspector Wheeler today the story of her travels with Cohen, which she prefaced with the declaration, "I have won my point, though I had to leave home to do it. I want to be free." She tearfully told of a lack of companionship of her own age, and restrictions so close she felt like a prisoner.

Philadelphia, Jan. 11.—Detectives with a warrant for abduction, have gone to Chicago to get Cohen.

STATUE TO GENERAL LEW WALLACE IS UNVEILED

Washington, Jan. 11.—Indiana was joined by the rest of the nation in honoring Gen. Lew Wallace, when the statue of the famous soldier, statesman and author was unveiled in Statuary hall, John P. McGrew, Wallace's chief of staff in the Civil war, presided. Lew Wallace, Jr., a grandson, unveiled the statue. The presentation was by Governor Marshall. An original poem by James Whitcomb Riley was read. There were addresses by Senator Beveridge, A. J. Rustem, of the Turkish embassy, and W. H. Andrews, delegate from New Mexico.

MR. L. L. BEBOUT IS LOCATED IN LOUISVILLE

Mr. Louis L. Bebout is in this city this week. He is now located in Louisville, as assistant general state agent for the Consolidated Casualty company, of Chicago. Mr. Bebout left here last summer and went to Texas to locate, but the first year he received a flattering offer from this company, to come to Kentucky, and he accepted. Headquarters will be in Louisville and his duties will take him all over the state. Mr. Bebout is in Saratonia, but will join Mr. Bebout.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 11.

Daily Thought.

Not to repent of a fault is to justify it.—Pliny.

We trust the aircraft demonstration on the coast won't have the effect of producing a war scare as it did in England.

Some men are so polite they can't tell the truth.

An eleven-year-old marvel has puzzled Harvard professors with his elucidation of the fourth dimension. Childless professors! A four-year-old could twist them up worse with the first dimension.

Talk about combinations in restraint of trade; was there ever greater unanimity of values than are to be found at the Paducah market house?

Senator L. W. Arnett introduced a bill, providing for a county detective in every county containing a Second class city. Sometime the Kentucky Court of Appeals will declare that kind of thing class legislation.

RIVERSIDE.

Riverside hospital continues to be the city's pride. It brings people here from all parts of western Kentucky for treatment. It cares for the indigent sick of the city, who otherwise would die of neglect. It makes Paducah a medical center for a wide territory, and gives the city a character of medical practitioners, who maintain a live interest in everything that affects the city's welfare, thus assuring intelligent attention to sanitation. It is a thoroughly up-to-date institution, well equipped and now made safe by improvements installed during the last twelve months. More than 500 patients were cared for there during the year. It is managed to a considerable extent under the direction of the physicians of the city, and that insures immunity from wretched politics, as nothing else would. While, of course, the physicians benefit directly by the presence of the hospital, the whole city benefits more, and is proud of the institution.

THE TARIFF AND FOODSTUFFS.

Figures of the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, throw a peculiar light on the charge that the tariff is responsible for the high cost of living. While our exports of farm products increased a hundred million dollars in the ten years from 1899 to 1909, the exports of meat and dairy products fell off nine millions, of animals fifteen millions, of wheat, corn and flour a hundred millions. So, though the tariff may have prevented the importation of these food products, just as it did ten years ago, there was a falling off of exports of over a hundred million dollars' worth, showing that, either the country consumed that much more, or production has decreased that much in the ten years. So we must conclude that the relation of the local supply to the demand has caused the high price, and the tariff could have nothing to do with the advance in that time.

WIT.

Wit is a weapon; not a magician's wand or an instrument of entertainment. It is a thing to fight with or to lay down; but in the hands of a wise or vain person, who uses it to display his skill, wit becomes dangerous. Too many of our weeklies, which should supplement the daily newspapers by accurate resume and analysis of the news, maintain an editorial staff for the sole purpose, it would seem, of dazzling the public with the sharp shafts of its wit. The consequence is, that the public, which depends on that kind of reading matter for its opinions, is divided between contempt for and fear of every person, who occupies a conspicuous and responsible position in public, professional or business life. Those, who read such stuff for the pure enjoyment of the witticisms, as they might read clever fiction, derive occasional moments of pleasure from them; but, unfortunately, the frolicsome humor of the editorials passes for sagacious comment in too many uninformed minds.

THE OPPORTUNIST.

The man who succeeds is the man who "keeps his eye on the main chance"; in other words, the man, who, knowing what he wants, does not allow his attention to be distracted from the substance by minor issues that obtrude in the course of events. The man, who is so greedy, that he can not bear to leave gleanings for others, loses the better part of his crop, in picking up the loose straws. The citizen, who takes his mind off the important ends of government, finds himself involved in a maze of doubt, and used to defeat the object he desires to attain. In all things keep well in mind the ultimate object, take advantage of such circumstances as will obviously promote the attainment of your object, and let unfavorable circumstances pass by for the gleaner. It will keep them quiet, and make your ends more simple. There are two kinds of opportunists, those who seem forever jumping from this opportunity to that, sometimes advancing, sometimes retreating, but never getting anywhere; and those who have an end in mind and select their opportunities with a view to their fitness for that end. Have an aim; be an opportunist; learn to think and use your brains. That's what God gave them to you for.

MANCHURIA.

Little old Japan has no intention of loosening her grip on the economic machinery of Manchuria. Still our proposal for the sale of the railroads to China and the neutrality of the zone will make the ambitious oriental proceed slowly, and its refusal of our demands will check Japan in her demands on us. Also Chinese statesmen must appreciate the consistently friendly attitude of America, at whose institutions most of her statesmen are being educated. A four years' college course for Chinese statesmen will offset the proximity of Japan's naval base.

THE PRESS ON PINCHOT.

Forced Pinchot Out.

The president's dismissal of Chief Forester Pinchot is not in the least surprising in view of the events of the past day or two. We suppose that there will now be a great howl from people who, for one reason or another, are trying to discredit the administration, to the effect that the president is turning away from the conservation policies of his predecessor. There has been some talk of this sort already—and it is rank nonsense! The president is quite as much interested in conservation as Gifford Pinchot; he is quite as fully determined to preserve the people's rights, in the Alaskan coal fields and elsewhere, as the ex-chief forester. But an official who willfully and openly disregards executive orders, and who does not hesitate to publicly question the intelligence and even the good faith of his superiors, is pretty sure to come to grief first or last, whether he be employed by the government or by a private concern. There is not a corporation in the country whose president would tolerate such gross insubordination and disloyalty as were shown in the Pinchot letter read by Senator Dolliver in the senate on Thursday. For the president to have remained passive after the publication of such a letter would have been to invite wholesale disobedience and confusion in every department of the government. Pinchot cannot claim that he has been forced out of the forestry service. He forced himself out—and that under conditions which make it seem not improbable that he has had a considerable share in some of the underhanded work of the past few months, after all.—Cincinnati Times Star, owned by Charles P. Taft.

Country Is for Pinchot.

Without inquiring into the technical justice of the discharge of Mr. Pinchot, the Tribune must repeat that the country will stand by Pinchot, right or wrong. It does not understand legal technicalities, and it is prepared to accept the president's statement that Mr. Ballinger has acted within the law. But long since the country has been able to distinguish between men who are law-honest and those who are moved by moral zeal for the preservation of the public interest against private privilege. In that sense the Tribune believes that the great majority will disapprove the action of the president in discharging Pinchot. Pinchot, who of all men under President Taft, represents in the clearest sense the spirit of the administration of Theodore Roosevelt.—Chicago Tribune, Republican.

Dismissal Was Inevitable.

For the present it is sufficient to say that, while the loss of so sincere and vigorous an official, so unselfish a champion of public interests, is to be deeply regretted, the dismissal could not have been avoided, and that only the bigoted and wilfully blind will see in it either a blow at the conservation movement or failure in Mr. Taft to recognize the courage, the devotion, the vigilance with which Mr. Pinchot served the government and the nation in the forestry bureau.

In private life Mr. Pinchot can still be a powerful ally of the conservationists, and no one will welcome his aid more cordially than the president who signed the letter ending his official career.—Chicago Record-Herald (Ind. Rep.)

Sees Public Disapproval.

President Taft will find it difficult to convince the American public that dismissal of Gifford Pinchot was for the public good and not for the benefit of lumber pirates, mining magnates and land thieves, from whom the public believes Mr. Pinchot has earnestly striven to protect the public domain.—Chicago Journal (Ind.)

Insures "Return From Elba."

The removal of Gifford Pinchot from the head of the forestry bureau by President Taft yesterday was the inevitable result of the latter's letter to Senator Dolliver, read in the senate on the previous day. The letter was a challenge of so undisguised a character that to ignore it would be to present to the country the spectacle of an administration unable to control the action of its subordinates. It is not clear that the matter will end there. It is difficult to believe that so deliberate a forcing of the matter to irreparable rupture could be made by the chief exponent of the conservation policy without definite plans in reserve for further political conflict. We are free to say that the "Return from Elba" has assumed more tangible form within the past forty-eight hours than at any previous time.—Pittsburg Dispatch (Rep.)

No Other Course Open.

That portion of the public which believes that "order is heaven's first law" will take sides with President Taft in the contentions which have been created by the removal of Pinchot.

Even those who have great esteem for the skill and energy of the forester will find no other course open to them.

Pinchot is a striking example of that type of man beloved by Roosevelt—the man with ability to "do things." No one can assail his high record for efficiency. But the fact is made evident that he could not or would not conform to those orderly methods without which all great enterprises must fall into confusion.

Right or wrong in that embroglio which must ultimately result in the discrediting of men high in authority and office, he has clearly been wrong in his method.—St. Louis Times (Republican.)

SOME STORIES

AROUND TOWN

From Beau Broadway's column in the New York Morning Telegraph: There are two Cobbs on the staff of the World.—Frank I., who is the head of the editorial works of the Evening, who comes from Adrian, Mich., by way of Detroit, and Irvin Cobb, the humorist and special writer of the Evening, who comes from Paducah, Ky., by way of Paducah, Ky.—not related in any way, but close personal friends.

Now when Frank I. was a young fellow out West he went by his middle name, which is Irving, whereas now he is always known as F. I. When the addition to the Pulitzer building was dedicated with rites and ceremonies, a bunch of senators and congressmen came over from Washington on a special train to assist. One of the speakers of the imported bunch was Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, and after he had thrown a few verbal tube roses and holyhoes at the World he proceeded to say some extremely complimentary thing about his schoolmate and boyhood chum, "now the chief editorial writer of this g-g-great metropolitan journal.

But the good senator made the great mistake of referring to his boyhood chum as Irving Cobb (loud cheers from Irvin Cobb's friends), and for the remainder of the evening the Kentucky Cobb mooned around, calmly absorbing the congratulations which by right belonged to the Michigan Cobb. He even went so far as to drag the Michigan Cobb around with him to hear some of them.

This was more than a year ago, and ever since the Michigan Cobb has been waiting for his revenge. He had it, sweetened to taste, the other night when Publisher Adolph Ochs, of the Times, gave a dinner to the directors of the Associated Press in his private banquet room in the tower of the Times building. Among the guests were former District Attorney Jerome and Frank I. Cobb.

Frank Cobb and Jerome hadn't been very friendly of late, but, sitting together that evening, they shook hands and made it up. A little later Jerome got up to make a toast. He happens to be a vociferous admirer of the brand of humor which Irvin Cobb turns out, and so it was natural that he should preface an anecdote by saying:

"This ain't my story; it belongs to my friend Cobb, of the World, who, next to Kinley Peter Dunne, has the keenest wit of any man in America."

Whereupon the rest of the diners, who had just observed the reconciliation of Jerome and Frank I. Cobb, broke into friendly applause, and the Michigan Cobb made a modest bow of acknowledgement, the while emitting a low, fawning chuckle within himself.

Next morning when the Michigan Cobb gloatingly told the Kentucky Cobb about it, the Kentucky Cobb is reported to have went large briny tears.

WASHINGTON NEWS

the hostile acts of the past few days will continue with increasing bitterness.

All the insurgents caucused in groups of twos, threes and fours on the floor and in the cloak rooms, debating the desirability of an early meeting to form a battle front to meet the onslaughts reported to be coming from the organization. Much secrecy is observed.

The party caucus will be invoked by the regulars against the insurgents and whenever there are differences the insurgents will be forced out of the party pale. Reconciliant representatives are not disconcerted over this. They freely assert that no compulsory measure will avail anything to the organization. If the test of regularity lies in following the "machine" as several denominated it, they said they preferred to be irregular.

The joint Republican caucus Wednesday night is not expected to follow the present affairs to a focus, as it is not thought that anything will be considered there excepting the election of the new congressional committee. The first battle will occur, it is believed, over the selection of the committee by the house to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. The house Republicans doubtless will caucus to name the committee and map out the program, and here the insurgents will, it is believed, "fish or cut bait." A dozen insurgents said privately that they would not attend a caucus where they knew there was a prearranged plan to discredit them.

Representative Underwood, speaking for the Democrats, said the minority probably will caucus also on the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry. There is a prospect of a joint Democratic-Republican insurgent committee being named to oppose the committee of regular Republicans which would bring the test battle on the floor.

"We are like the outside nine," said Underwood, "waiting to see which ball is going to be batted. We cannot play until they hit something in our direction."

The letter issued by the Republican congressional committee to the effect that those who oppose the Republican doctrine and policies as interpreted by the present administration can expect no more support from the regular wing of the Republican party, came from the "literary bureau" of the organization. It was stated that the congressional committee did not exist as a body, and therefore is not responsible.

McKinley, of Illinois, chairman of the committee, admitted that there is virtually no committee, and he himself assumed responsibility for the letter.

It was sent out, he said, under his guidance as a part of the regular "weekly news letter."

Among the significant developments was the return to the insurgents' camp of Gardner, of Massachusetts, son-in-law of Senator Lodge. Gardner had favored the cessation of hostilities, but said: "I will act with the insurgents on all matters relating to the rules and management of the house. It is unfair to represent the house insurgents as opposed to Taft. They are associated for the single purpose of freeing the house from autocracy."

Bill Following Taft Message.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative Townsend introduced in the house the bill embodying the recommendations outlined in the special message of President Taft for amendments to the interstate commerce law. It provides, among other things for a commerce court, composed of five federal circuit judges, to have exclusive original jurisdiction over matters growing out of orders of the interstate commerce commission.

This court is to be composed of five circuit judges, who shall serve by assignment of the chief justice for a term of five years, but no two of the judges' terms will expire at the same time, and thus under all circumstances four of the judges will have had several years' experience with these technical questions.

When an order of the commission is contested in the commissioners' court, court, the petition of the carrier taking the matter into the court will not stay the order of the order, nor can it be enjoined except by the court or by some member of it, and then only upon notice and hearing, and except in cases where irreparable injury would be caused by such notice and hearing, in which case the court or judge granting the injunction must make a finding from facts to the effect that irreparable injury would result.

Assistant to Attorney-General. Provision is made for the prosecution and defense of all matters taken into the commerce court by the department of justice, and for this purpose it is proposed to appoint an assistant to the attorney-general, who shall have special charge of such cases.

As recommended by the president, agreements between carriers will be permitted, provided they are made public and filed with the commission and subject to the same rules and regulations as to rates and other recognized regulations.

Carriers must quote correctly in writing upon the written request of a shipper any rate between the place of proposed shipment, and any other place on the carrier's line or any line with which the initial carrier has traffic arrangements, as evidenced by joint published tariffs.

In case an erroneous rate is given in writing whereby a shipper is injured, the carrier whose agent has made the misquotation is subject to a penalty of $250, to be collected by and paid to the government.

Suspend Carriers' Notice. The bill would empower the commission to suspend the carriers' notice of change of rate pending a decision as to whether the proposed new rate is just and reasonable.

As for freight, the shipper is given the right to "route his freight" and classifications must be just and reasonable. The commission is authorized to initiate proceedings upon its own motion.

It is proposed to prevent the issuance of stock and bonds except for legitimate railroad purposes and with the approval of the commission and as recommended in the special message of the president it is proposed to prohibit every carrier from acquiring any stock in a line of railroad, which in any way competes with it, except as a court may find that the people are better served by such acquisition. It is not proposed to compel carriers to dispose of stock which they now own in competing lines, and where a carrier now owns a majority of the stock of a parallel line it may be permitted to purchase the balance of the stock and if a carrier is now operating a competing line under a 25-year or longer lease, it may purchase such road at the expiration of the lease.

The bill will be presented to the senate by Senator Elkins. The draft was made by Attorney-General Wickham after many conferences with President Taft, who had discussed the proposed legislation with members of the interstate commerce commission and with railroad officials. The latter tried vainly to modify many provisions contained in the bill. The final conference on the measure was held in the committee room of Senator Elkins and was attended by the senator, Mr. Townsend and the attorney-general. It was agreed by both Senator Elkins and Mr. Townsend that they would exert their influence to have the bill enacted into law without amendment of any character.

Allen-Boulware.
A pretty home wedding, charming in plan and impressive in solemnization was that of Miss Irene Allen and Mr. John Philip Boulware this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary O. Allen, 514 North Fourth street.

The home was beautifully decorated in a color-motif of pink and green. Palms, plumosa ferns and smilax with pink carnations and roses were used with graceful effect and made an attractive setting for the bridal party. Only relatives and intimate friends of the young couple were present.

Miss Allen entered with her youngest brother, Mr. Wynham Allen, who gave her away. Mr. Boulware's best man was his brother, Mr. Alex Boulware, of Hopkinsville. Miss India Lang was at the piano and rendered the Mendelssohn wedding march with sympathetic charm for the bridal procession. "Call Me Thine Own" was played softly during the ceremony. The Rev. Grant T. Sullivan, D. D., of the Broadway Methodist church, pronounced the ceremony.

The bride, who is a dainty and patrician-looking girl, was charming in a pretty going-away gown of brown with hat and gloves and shoes in harmony. She carried pink roses.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. An attractively appointed salad-course luncheon was served. The table prettily emphasized the pink and green color-tone of the decorations. An orchestra played during the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Boulware will leave at 6:15 o'clock for St. Louis. They will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. Logan Boulware, 434 South Sixth street, on their return.

Out-of-town guests present for the ceremony were: Mrs. Jesse Moss, of Memphis, sister of the bride; Miss Edith Boulware and Mr. Alex Boulware, of Hopkinsville, sister and brother of the bride-groom.

Charming Complimentary Cotillion Tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Exall's dancing party tonight in the ball room of the Three Links building will be an attractively appointed affair. It is given in honor of the charming house-guests of Mrs. Exall, Mrs. Julia Shields and Miss Lillian McGavock, of Columbia, Tenn. The cotillion will be led by Mr. Douglas Bagby and Miss McGavock.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Exall will be: Mrs. Shields, and Mr. Virgil Sherrill; Miss McGavock and Mr. Douglas Bagby; Miss Corrie Grundy and Mr. Joe Exall; Miss Ethel Morrow and Mr. Gus Thompson; Dr. and Mrs. David G. Murrell; Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard S. Wells; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherrill.

A large number of invitations have been issued and it will be a notable social event.

Birthday Party.

A delightful evening was spent at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Wilks, 901 Jones street, in honor of the eighteenth birthday of James Wilks. Enjoyable games were played and refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Katie Mercer, Susie McIntosh, Alma Dillard, Nora Simpson, Bettie Burnam, Rena Engler, Maude Housman, Jerdie Harris, Hattie Morgan, Ella Hanners; Messrs. Olin Cook, Candy Burnam, Manley Morgan, James Wilks, Abe Warren, Charlie Glin, Clarence Lennox, Earl Ingram, Willie Moore, Capple Peeples.

Week of Prayer.
The Woman's Missionary society of the First Baptist church is celebrating its Week of Prayer with services every afternoon this week at 2:30 o'clock at the church. It is hoped that all the ladies of the church and any friends who may be interested, will attend the services.

Meat Will Go Higher.
Denver, Colo., Jan. 11.—Harold Swift, of Chicago, attended the stock show, says the highest meat prices are not reached yet. He says the scarcity of live stock accounts for the lack of food. Farmers prefer to sell their corn. People should learn to eat cheaper cuts of meat, which properly cooked are as good as the expensive cuts. Mr. Leonard, general manager of the Chicago Stock Yards, says the solution of the beef scarcity is to produce more grain to the acre.

PRODUCE TRADE

IS UNUSUALLY ACTIVE FOR THIS SEASON.

Generally Dull But There Is Demand, Which Has Stimulated Prices and Activity.

The after-holiday business with the produce houses is much better this year than it has been in many years. After the holiday season it is usual for the produce to be on the drag for several weeks, but right now there is a lively demand for goods. The cold weather has interfered with the shipment of many fruits, and of produce from the north and west, but the moderation and trade is expected to pick up even more.

Cabbage and potatoes are short on the local market, due to the impossibility of receiving shipments. As a consequence, there has been a slight advance in price. Apples are a luxury at present as the choicest retail anywhere from 50 cents to 60 cents a peck. The supply of fruit has been good, and the prices have a tendency to decrease a trifle. The present cold snap affected the fruit growers in California and Florida, and the growers are rushing their products to the eastern markets so that they may avoid a loss. The public should beware of frozen fruit, as much of it has been shipped to the eastern markets, and all oranges and fruits should be examined before purchases are made. Frozen fruit usually is soft, and may be detected.

Firemen Have Narrow Escape.
Chicago, Jan. 11.—Twenty firemen narrowly escaped this morning while fighting a fire on the first floor of a building occupied by Richardson and Boynton, furnace manufacturers. The fire broke out in the basement, and the firemen heroically extricated them with difficulty. Four were injured.

Cudahy Wedding Soon.
San Francisco, Jan. 11.—Edward Cudahy, Jr., arrived today from the home of his sister, Mrs. Jack Caspers, at San Mateo, where Miss Norah Brower, whose marriage to Cudahy was postponed in July on account of his illness, is staying. It is expected the wedding will be soon. The family is reticent.

Poet Laureate Is Well.
Miss V. M. Knisley, superintendent at Riverdale hospital, today notified Mayor Smith that Fred Schwender, the poet laureate of Minnesota, has recovered sufficiently to be discharged tomorrow and preparations are being completed for his departure. Chief of Police Singery had a "talk" with Schwender this afternoon and he will be sent to Peoria, Ill., at his request. Schwender claims to be deaf and dumb. He has been a public nuisance for several months and the police have devised this scheme to get rid of him.

Morgan Is a Menace.
Berlin, Jan. 11.—Under the caption "The Morgan Peril," Dr. Leipsiger, one of Germany's foremost writers in his weekly magazine, attacked Morgan and says in part: "From America, the land of unlimited financial swindles, over speculation, there cries a menace to the world, including Germany. The danger is J. Pierpont Morgan. The ambition of this man, who controls the entire capital of America, is a most terrible danger to the civilized world."

TAR AND FEATHERS FOR ANTI-VARDAMAN FACTION

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 11.—Tar and feather threats entered the senatorial caucus. They are directed against the men who are trying to defeat Vardaman for the senatorial vacancy caused by the death of McLaurin. The threats say unless the anti-Vardamans cease the opposition will be tarred and feathered. John Sharp Williams is the most prominent one.

Miss Edith Boulware and Mr. Alex Boulware, of Hopkinsville, arrived last night to attend the Allen-Boulware wedding. They are guests of their brother, Mr. Logan Boulware, of South Sixth street.

AT THE STAR.

The bill at The Star the first half of this week is said, by connoisseurs of vaudeville, to be one of the best ever shown there.

The Huntsville (Ala.) Sun, in commenting on Billy Doss, now at The Star but at the Edisona there last week, says: "Billy Doss is making a great hit with his immense fund of new jokes and his clever singing. He is a black face comedian without a peer and has already become a great favorite."

The same paper, in commenting on the high character of the bill at the Theaterium in Huntsville, lays especial stress on the fine work of Wilson & Wilson, a comedy team now at The Star, saying: "Wilson & Wilson certainly know how to get the laughs. Their jokes are all new and their act brought forth one continuous burst of laughter from start to finish. Their Yodel song is well worth mentioning, for it caught the house. Also their electric log dance—a striking novelty which has never before been seen here in vaudeville."

This enthusiastic comment would indicate that The Star's present bill is worth more than any time ever coined.

COLONIAL HOTEL

A delightful place to spend your vacation is at the Colonial Hotel, West Baden Springs, Indiana. Most every one knows of the marvelous cures with the West Baden and French Lick Springs mineral waters, where thousands have been cured. The Medical Staff of the Colonial Hotel Laboratories have extracted the minerals from the water of Sal-Lithia Spring at West Baden, to be taken at home which reproduces the West Baden and French Lick treatment. We want everyone who is troubled with their stomach, liver and bowels, which means indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, sour stomach, inactive liver, jaundice and bad complexion, headache, melancholy, nervousness, insomnia, female weakness and general debility and very often affects the heart, to come to the Colonial Hotel or write us and we will send them a sample of Concentrated Sal-Lithia Free. Sal-Lithia keeps the stomach healthy and makes the liver and bowels act and by so doing none of the above diseases will trouble you. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Sal-Lithia is a uric acid solvent, and will cure Rheumatism. For a Ten-Day Home Treatment, $1.00. Address: COLONIAL HOTEL LABORATORIES, West Baden Springs, Indiana. Colonial Hotel rates are $2.00 to $5.00 per day, American Plan. Annex $10.00 to $15.00 per week.

CARELESS THIEF

HE OVERLOOKS DIAMONDS AND MONEY IN HIS HASTE.

Interrupted in His Search He Takes Gold Ornaments and Makes Escape.

The police are on the trail of a negro weighing 140 pounds, five feet and seven inches high, and 23 years old, who stole several articles of jewelry and toilet water from the apartment of Miss Irene Fowler, 614 Madison street, some time Saturday night. The negro entered, unseen and was working quietly when Miss Fowler's brother, Grover, entered the room. The sight of the man checked him and before he could recover from the shock the thief had disappeared through another door, taking belt buckles, ribbons, gold shirt waist with the letter "F" engraved on them and a bottle of toilet water. The articles are valued at about $10. Fortunately the thief overlooked a purse containing $20 in money and diamond rings valued at $300, lying nearby.

The Stove Was Smoking.

Smoke pouring out from a stove last night at the store of B. Michael, 211 Broadway, almost resulted in a fire alarm. Patrolmen Ogilvie and Shelton discovered the smoke issuing from the cracks and telephoned the Central station. Several firemen responded and after climbing through a transom found that it was a stove smoking. The store is closed by an order of court.

BEDRIDDEN WITH ECZEMA SIX WEEKS

Itching, Burning Eruption from Head to Foot—Doctor Gave Her Up Entirely—First Application of Cuticura Brought Relief and Sleep.

CUTICURA REMEDIES EFFECT PERFECT CURE

"Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor I was advised to try the Cuticura Remedies. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Neeney, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., April 11, 1909."

Cuticura Soap
Soothing, Cooling, Refreshing for Tender Skins.

Because of its delicate, emollient, sanative, antiseptic properties derived from Cuticura, united with the purest of saponaceous ingredients and most refreshing of flower odors, Cuticura Soap is unrivalled for cleansing, preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for dispelling itching, irritation and inflammation and preventing clogging of the pores, the cause of many disgusting facial eruptions. All who delight in a clear skin, soft, white hands, a clean, wholesome scalp and live, glossy hair, will find that Cuticura Soap realizes every expectation.

Cuticura Soap (25c), Cuticura Ointment (50c) and Cuticura Resolvent (50c) for in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c per box of 50 are sold throughout the world. Napoleon's Poor Idea of Women.

Napoleon was as cranky about women as George Bernard Shaw, the caustic unbeliever, who says man proposes, but woman disposes. A new book on the Little Corporal makes it plain that it cost him no pang to cast off Josephine. We read that Napoleon said: "Women are at the bottom of every intrigue. They ought to be kept to their household duties; they should be forbidden to appear in public unless they wear veils and black attire." Evidently, if Napoleon were alive today, he would have no patience with the belligerent suffragettes. But that is not the worst. "We have ruined everything by treating women too well, and we have committed the great mistake of placing them almost on a level with ourselves. The eastern races display far more wisdom and sense of the fitness of things. They have declared women to be our slaves. It is only by reason of our perverted view of things that they dare to lay claim to any sovereignty over us. They abuse certain advantages the possess to seduce us and then to tyrannize over us. For one woman who inspires us with worthy ideas there are a hundred who cause us to make fools of ourselves." It seems that experience cut pretty deep in this great man's case.—New York Press.

Only Two Knew of It.

The late Judge Silas Bryan, the father of William J. Bryan, once had several hams stolen from his smokehouse. He missed them at once, but said nothing about it to anyone, a few days later a neighbor came to him.

"Say, Judge," he said, "I heard yew had some hams stole 't'other night."

"Yes," replied the judge, very confidentially, "but don't tell anyone. You and I are the only ones who know it."—Success Magazine.

FOUND OUT

A Trained Nurse Made Discovery

No one is in better position to know the value of food and drink than a trained nurse. Speaking of coffee, a nurse of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., writes, "I used to drink strong coffee myself, and suffered greatly from headaches and indigestion. While on a visit to my brother's I had a good chance to try Postum Food Coffee, for they drank it altogether in place of ordinary coffee. In two weeks after using Postum I found I was much benefited and finally my headaches disappeared and also the indigestion."

"Naturally I have since used Postum among my patients, and have noticed a marked benefit where coffee has been left off and Postum used."

I observed a curious fact about Postum when used among mothers. It greatly helps the flow of milk in cases where coffee is inclined to dry it up, and where tea causes nervousness.

I find trouble in getting servants to make Postum properly. They must always serve it before it has been boiled long enough, and should be boiled 15 to 20 minutes after boiling begins and served with cream, when it is certainly a delicious beverage. Send "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

CHICAGO POLICE FIND BLOPERS

MISS DE JANON AND FRED COHEN IN CUSTODY.

As Father and Child the Two Were in a Northside Boarding House—Left Philadelphia Dec. 29.

THEY WENT TO CANADA FIRST

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Living as father and daughter, Roberta Buist de Janon, the 17-year-old heiress, and Frederick Cohen, a waiter, who eloped December 29, were arrested here.

They were discovered on the north side in a rooming house. Cohen, who is married, admitted his identity, and Miss de Janon, sobbing, pleaded to be restored to her parents.

It was learned that the couple left Philadelphia on December 29, went to New York, thence to Montreal, thence to Nova Scotia, where they boarded a steamer for England, leaving there they went to Boston, then came to Chicago, arriving here last Thursday.

Cohen introduced the girl as his daughter, Alice, and himself as Robert King, and said he was a barber looking for work.

The girl said that when they reached Chicago they had only $1.60. Cohen pawned her bracelet and necklace to procure money to live. Mrs. Frank Perrin, with whom they boarded, suspected from newspaper pictures that they were the Philadelphia elopers.

Cohen is held at the Chicago avenue station, and the girl and her dog are at the Harrison street station.

Cohen vehemently denied that any harm came to the girl during their flight.

In the possession of the girl was found a letter written by Cohen, December 14, wherein the waiter begged her to not elope with him, and said the reasons he was loath to run away with her was "because it would ruin your future—our future, and because I am a man of principle and honor, and because I really love you."

A letter written by the girl to her father, and not yet mailed, was also found. This revealed that the girl might be contemplating suicide; she asked that Cohen's wife forgive her because she coaxed her husband to elope with her so she would not have to attend a private school at Bryn Mawr, where she was to be sent on January 3.

In one of the letters addressed to her father Miss de Janon wrote:

"I asked Cohen to take me with him. After refusing several times he finally consented to take me as his daughter. Fred treated me just as if I were his own daughter."

Said She Would Die.

Philadelphia, Jan. 11.—Roberta de Janon, sole heiress of her grandfather, Robert Buist, disappeared from the Bellevue-Stratford hotel a few days before her seventeenth birthday.

Her father, a New York stock broker, received several letters from her that day announcing that she was going to drown herself because she could not bear to live after the death of her mother. The wife of Frederick Cohen, waiter, aged 46, who served Miss de Janon her meals, reported that her husband was missing and produced a letter she alleged the girl sent him.

THE LEGISLATURE

create the office of county detective in counties containing a city of second class and providing for the appointment of same.

Causes Scrap.

Senator T. W. Arnett offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a district detective in every county having a city of the second class. A resolution of Senator L. W. Arnett, providing for the appointment, by President Pro Tem Linn, of the senate, Senator Combs and the sergeant-at-arms, of not more than 12 assistants in the senate, caused a lively discussion. Senator Gus Brown said that he wanted it understood that while the additional help might be needed, he wished to warn them that their appointment would be unconstitutional, and that there might be trouble in collecting their money. He referred to the case of Cromwell vs. the state auditor, in which his contention was upheld. The resolution prevailed, however, on a ye and nay vote.

Senator L. W. Arnett submitted a bill providing for the appointment of a state inspector of boilers, at a salary of $2,400 per annum, and he shall appoint eight assistants at $1,800 per year.

Senator H. H. Smith offered a bill providing for the teaching of literature in the common schools of the state.

Senator H. H. Smith also offered a bill providing for the establishment of two sub-experiment stations, one in the eastern and one in the western part of the state, to aid in the de-

People Will Talk You Know

And that's the reason why Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines are advertised so little now-a-days. They have made hundreds of thousands of cures in the past 40 years, and some of the grateful people whom they have restored to health are to be found almost everywhere. There's scarcely a hamlet that don't contain some. Look them up. Interview them. They are living, walking, active advertisements.

For Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines.

You can believe your neighbors. Therefore ask them. What cured them will very likely cure you, if similarly afflicted—only give them a good, fair trial.

It's a good, sound, common sense policy to use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

development of the agricultural resources of the state.

A bureau of forestry in connection with each station also is provided for. The bill passed two years ago, but was vetoed by the governor.

More Money for Fair.

Senator Wyatt offered a bill appropriating approximately $200,000 for the benefit of the state fair grounds to be used in erecting additional buildings and buying additional ground.

The bill of Senator Wyatt, making the state fair appropriation, divides the total as follows: To complete indebtedness already incurred in erecting buildings and improvements; for the purchase of 45 acres of land adjoining the fair grounds, $16,000; for the erection of a building for the exhibit of agricultural products, $60,000; for the erection of a woman's building, $35,000; for additional sections of grand stand, $40,000; for a poultry building, $10,000; for the erection of a home for the superintendent of the fair grounds, $5,000; for the erection of a home for the custodian of the state fair buildings, $2,000; for the building of executive offices, $10,000.

An Emergency is Declared.

The additional assistants employed under the authority of the resolution of Senator L. W. Arnett were sworn in as follows: Oscar Vest, mail clerk; Miss Annie Nourse and Mrs. Ella Hutchinson Ellwanger, copyists; Welsh Wilks, reader; Dave Haly, assistant doorkeeper; Gaston Poole, stenographer; O. W. Faulkner, clerk of committees; Wharton Fenaker, special messenger; John Gaines, page to the lieutenant governor and Frank Chipman, bill clerk.

Senator Newcomb offered a bill to amend the civil code of practice where persons act for others. A slight change in the phraseology is made.

Senator Newcomb also offered a bill providing for the introduction of electricity as a means of inflicting the death penalty instead of hanging. The bill is modeled after similar laws in other states and such executions must take place inside the walls of the state penitentiary.

Senator Linn offered his bill prohibiting the loaning of money on salaries of city, county and state employees, unless within three days the party loaning the money files within the three days with the employer notice of lien and if this is not done the loan cannot be collected in court.

New County Unit Bill.

Senator Watkins introduced a bill extending the county unit law to take in cities of the first, second, third and fourth classes as to elections and also prohibits cities of these four classes from holding other elections the same day that a local option election is being held.

Senator Watkins says this is certain to pass the senate.

Senator Thomas introduced a bill permitting women to vote in school elections.

Hopkinsville Tobacco.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 11.—Comparatively little business was done on the local tobacco market last week, owing to the bad condition of the country roads, making deliveries next to impossible and the terrible weather and heavy snow completely putting an end to traffic during the latter part of the week. Sales were held the first three days of the week, and probably 100,000 pounds was sold in that time. Previous bad weather had put the roads in such bad condition that only small deliveries were made, and it was all of low to medium grade. For all the offerings there was a strong demand each day, and prices showed a marked advance, being from 50c to $1 per hundred pounds on nearly all grades.

A Promise To Pay

Would you accept a stranger's note? No. Then why accept from a stranger any other promise to pay? A Fire Insurance policy is such a promise. Ought you to accept it without knowing all about the Company? Your usual business confidence is based on knowledge. Why make an exception in that part of your business which deals with insurance? A name is worth nothing on any kind of a promise to pay unless it is backed by character and resources.

We favor insurance knowledge, particularly about our companies. Their promises to pay have never gone to its test. Their obligations are backed with such a good reputation and such ample financial resources that the more you know about them the more you will want protection by their policies.

HARRIET FORD.

In "The Fourth Estate" the effectiveness of newspapers in fearlessly exposing political and judicial corruption and the safeguard they are to the public are interestingly and convincingly set forth. A young, earnest newspaper writer and editor is the central figure, and his battles with a dishonest United States judge against big odds and against the cunningly underhanded machinations of the lawyer lobbyist Dupuy form one of the most valuable as well as most entertaining pieces of fiction of the day. That the false judge's daughter, the reigning beauty in the fashionable life of a leading city, should play a sensational part in this gripping story of strong honest men and of strong dishonest men, fighting each other in a war of dollars, evidences the romantic possibilities of the narrative. This is a story of today's America, a fact story torn out of life's book, dealing with the most vital issues that confront every one of us. Romance and humor vie with stirring action for supremacy in this instructive and fascinating novel, which teaches that the path of duty is the path to love and happiness and that in success, nobly won, lie rewards of greater and more lasting value than in a triumph ignobly and more easily gained.

CHAPTER I.

Burke said there were three estates in parliament, but in the reporters' gallery yonder there sat a Fourth Estate more important far than they all—Carlyle.

THE silence in the managing editor's room of the Daily Advance was abruptly broken by the entrance of Ross McHenry through a private door. His eighteen years of active newspaper work in a career extending from cub reporterhood to his present important office had drilled into him the necessity, even the habit, of constant action, quick thought, keen and accurate perception and readiness for emergencies. He hastily threw off his coat, glanced at several papers laid on his desk while he was out at dinner and seated himself in his managerial chair. He wrote a few rapid words on a pad of paper at his right hand as he pushed a button with his left to summon an office boy.

"Any one here while I was gone?" McHenry queried sharply as the boy entered.

"Yes, sir. Woman whose boy was pinched wants to keep it out of the paper. Been outside two hours. She's sittin' outside an' bawls an' bawls an' bawls."

"Tell her we're printing a newspaper and I've left for the night."

"Then there was a few phone calls. We handled 'em all 'cept th' last. He was a man named Nolan, an' he wanted ter see you."

McHenry immediately became interested. "What'd you tell him?" he asked, rising.

"That you was to th' theater."

The managing editor picked up a Congressional Directory and sipped it forcibly at the lad.

"Well, next time, young man, you tell him I've just stepped down to the night editor's room. Nolan; remember his name—Nolan. He's the new owner."

"Cheese it, another owner. Nobody keeps us long, do they?"

"No," responded McHenry laconically. "Like certain other luxuries, nobody keeps us long. We're too expensive, Durkin."

The boy grinned and hurried away to summon the night editor at McHenry's command and to dispose of the "bawling" woman.

McHenry seated himself and turned to the ever ready telephone at the right hand corner of his desk.

"Hello, Miss Se-wel. Get me Mr. Nolan—Mr. Michael Nolan—on the wire right away."

As the managing editor hung up the receiver Moore, the night editor, entered carrying a bundle of galley proofs in his left hand, a schedule in his right.

"Well, Moore, what have you got for part 1?" asked McHenry.

The night editor repeated rapidly in a dead flat monotonous voice:

"Thirty-five columns of ads. Telephone editor's hollering for twenty columns. He just got a couple of nice flashes—one from Pittsburg about a man eloping with his daughter-in-law; very fine people. Another first class murder from St. Louis. Local has twenty-six scheduled, sports are very heavy, bowling, fights, checkers, and Kentucky's shut down on racing; they want two pages. We've got a tip that Morgan has the asthma. Steel will probably open soft on Monday."

McHenry took down the telephone receiver and held it expectantly at his ear. He took the proofs from Moore's hand and began looking them over. They contained important articles which had been set up, but which he had not previously seen.

"Hello, there's a live one," he suddenly exclaimed, glancing over one of the sheets. "Bill, I'd like to run that one. Senator Deering dead yet?"

"No, not yet."

The managing editor was disgrusted. "Fshaw!" he exclaimed. "I'll bet the old codger dies for the afternoon papers. We're having rotten luck lately."

The telephone rang.

"Hello! Who's this?" cried McHenry savagely. But his voice changed abruptly to its most sugary tones.

"Oh, Mr. Nolan, this is Mr. McHenry. Yes; why, the boy said I'd gone to the theater. He's new to newspaper offices. Yes, indeed. He doesn't know we newspaper men have little time for theaters—no, indeed—ha, ha! I was downstairs in the press room all the time—yes, indeed; trouble with the roller on cylinder 5 of the color press, and I happen to have a bit of a mechanical turn of mind—yes, indeed. Anything I can do for you, sir? Hope we may have the pleasure of showing you over the office—your office—pretty soon. Yes, sir. Tonight? Yes, any time. We're always here. Yes, sir. Thank you."

He hung up the receiver and reverted to his natural voice. "It's the new boss, Moore. 'S coming down tonight."

"I wonder if that means more changes?" observed the night editor as he filled his pipe.

McHenry sighed.

"Ain't a man who gets into this business a sucker?"

The night editor smiled grimly.

"Wonder what kind of a joke is this at Nolan anyway?" he asked.

The night editor's brow wrinkled.

"All I know is that he's a Colorado miner with a bill of ore all his own."

He glanced over the night editor's schedule. "What is this T-T—golf or politics?"

"T-T—both; golf 2 down—conference with Aldrich."

McHenry snorted.

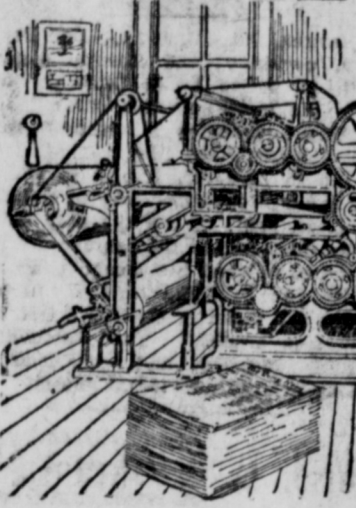

"Gosh, the White House is dead since Teddy left!" He pointed to the schedule. "What's this? 'Baltimore, one column.'"

"Double divorce. They exchanged partners."

"Good people?"

"Not much."

"Fifty words 'll be enough. Dead heavy—stupid paper," grunted the managing editor.

McHenry rang for the boy, Durkin, and on his belated arrival sent him to summon the city editor. "What you got?" saluted McHenry as the editor arrived.

Downs, the city editor, went straight to the point.

"Are you going to use that follow up story about Judge Bartelmy throwing the Lansing Iron company into a receivership?" he queried.

"I dunno. Any kinks on this morning's story?"

"I should say yes—telephone going all day."

McHenry turned and pounded the desk with his fist.

"If they kicked on that they'd get our jobs on this."

He pointed at the proof of the new Bartelmy story which he had taken from Moore. "All the same, the judicial ermine is getting rather soiled these days. It makes me sore to think of what they're pulling off on the federal bench. He's bad all through, that Bartelmy. Whose story is it—Brand's?"

"Yep," responded the city editor.

"By heaven, he is a newspaper man."

"That's why he won't last in this office," put in Moore sarcastically.

"Yep," supplemented the city editor.

McHenry's face took on a resigned expression as he said: "Well, we'll have to pass it up." He paused. "It's likely to be libelous."

He laid aside the proof sheet and resumed his perusal of the schedule of articles intended to be used in the next morning's paper.

"How about divorces?" McHenry asked suddenly, raising his head to the city editor.

"The Sarup divorce is up again. Two new correspondents named."

He pointed them out among the photos.

McHenry drew a few lines on one of the photos and rang for the boy.

"Bring me an artist, Durkin," he ordered. The artist soon appeared.

"Here," spoke up the managing editor, "take these correspondents and run 'em with the two you had yesterday, but fix those up different. Put a hat on one and the other in low neck, and put Sarup himself in the middle with a dade of hearts around."

McHenry changed his mind. "No; make it a big question mark of cupid's and the caption 'Which of These Women Does This Man Love?' Yes, and frame in his wife too. Three columns."

"Yes, sir," responded the artist, starting away with the photos.

But McHenry called him back.

"Hey!" he cried. "Make that 'Which of These Beautiful Women Does This Man Love?'"

The artist bowed in acquiescence and escaped.

McHenry took up another photograph.

"Ha, what a beauty!" he said enthusiastically. "What's she been doing?"

"She is Judith Bartelmy, the judge's daughter. She gave a reception to-day," answered Downs, the city editor.

"High society all there as usual. I suppose?" mused McHenry. "The Bartelmays are an old family, and they're held on to some of their money. Here, Downs," he went on, "play her up for two—no, three columns. Maybe it will square it with the judge for what we did to him in the paper this morning. You explain to an artist."

"All right."

"The new boss, Nolan, is coming down to look us over tonight," added McHenry.

"Wonder where we'll all be working next week?" was the city editor's reply over his shoulder as he quickly made his exit.

The boy came in and laid a card on the managing editor's desk.

"Miss Judith Bartelmy," exclaimed McHenry as he glanced at it. "Well, what do you think of that, Moore?"

"It's a kink sure, and—"

"By the way," interjected McHenry deliberately, "this girl, Judith Bartelmy, isn't she engaged to Wheeler Brand?"

"Seems to me I've heard something of the sort," assented Moore vaguely.

"Well, same here, and Brand wrote that story this morning showing up her father, the judge, as a trickster of the worst, most dangerous sort. Now the girl comes to this office—probably the managing editor was becoming excited here. Brand certainly had his nerve with him to hand such a roast to his prospective father-in-law."

McHenry turned abruptly to one side and reached for his coat, which he quickly donned.

"Show her in," he called to the boy.

Moore hastily retreated from the room as Judith Bartelmy entered, leaving the judge's daughter alone with the managing editor. McHenry had long flattered himself that he had met many attractive women in his time, but as he rose to meet Judith Bartelmy and surveyed this fashionably gowned young woman he made a mental note that she surpassed them all. Her blond features were of distinctly patrician cast. Her blue eyes had the magnetic qualities so envied by the many less fortunate women, and the pure whiteness of her finely curved chin and neck was advantageously revealed by the low cut collar of her princess gown of wine colored silk which clung to a figure that celebrated artists had pronounced unusual in its symmetry.

"I desire to complain about the article attacking my father this morning," the girl began.

"Yes?" answered McHenry. "I wish an apology for it."

"Is this a message from your father?"

"That's not the point. This is the first time in his life that any one has ventured to question his honor. The article is false, and I think your paper should apologize for it immediately."

"Before saying as to that," returned the managing editor, "I should have to refer the matter to the new proprietor, Mr. Nolan. You know it is not customary for a newspaper to take back what it says."

The judge's daughter raised her eyebrows in surprise as she drew close to McHenry's desk, where he had resumed his seat.

"I should think you'd have a good many lawsuits," she suggested.

"Oh, no; not many. We go up to the line, but we try not to step over it."

He picked up several newspapers from his desk. "For instance"—scanning the papers—"I don't think your father will feel inclined to sue us. He rose as if to end the interview."

Judith, however, was not to be thus disposed of.

"I don't want to detain you," she remarked, "but I should like to ask you who was responsible for that article."

She seated herself in a chair which McHenry indicated.

"We never tell the name of our writers," answered the managing editor.

Her father had diplomatically suggested to her that Wheeler Brand might have written the story. This she found difficult to believe. But she must be convinced, and one of her motives in visiting the newspaper had been to ask him to ask him to tell her that he was not the author of the new attack on her father. She must see him and learn the truth from his lips alone.

"Is Mr. Brand in the office now?" she asked.

"Yes, I think so."

"Would it be possible for me to see him?"

"Why, yes, if you wish. I'll send for him."

McHenry summoned the boy and told him to "ask Mr. Brand to come in."

"We've noticed"—she hesitated—"all his friends have noticed that he's becoming very radical lately."

Judith rose from the chair and stepped nervously toward the editor's desk.

"Oh," he laughed, "they all get that when they're young, like the measles."

"And that's something they all get over, isn't it?" she asked eagerly.

"Yes," responded McHenry, stirring as though to leave the room.

Judith stepped squarely in front of his desk.

"But I don't want to disturb you. Can't I go to his office?"

"He hasn't got any office, and they're all bunched in the local room in their shirt sleeves smoking. You wouldn't like it. We haven't a reception room."

McHenry laughed as he spoke.

In his shirt sleeves, rolled to his elbows, with quick steps and squared shoulders, Wheeler Brand, one of the ablest men on the city staff of the Advance, strode into the office of the managing editor through the door leading from the city and telegraph rooms.

"Yes, sir," he greeted McHenry. Then he stopped short both in his steps and in his speech. He had caught sight of the managing editor's visitor.

"Why, Judith!" he gasped.

"What in heaven's name are you doing here? I"—at this point words failed him, and he stood staring at her, with his breast heaving violently as the result of his surprise.

The girl was also deeply disturbed in spite of her previous knowledge that she was to be confronted by the man she loved.

McHenry thought that the moment had arrived when his presence was no longer necessary.

"Miss Bartelmy has asked to see you for a few minutes," he said, rising and starting toward a door. "You may talk here." A handful of proof sheets rustled in his grasp as he disappeared.

Wheeler Brand started toward the girl.

"Is there anything the matter?" he queried anxiously.

She hesitated before answering. Then she spoke determinedly.

"Yes; two things. First, you did not come to my reception this afternoon; secondly, there is that article about father this morning."

"I couldn't get off from the office to attend the reception, and I am awfully sorry," he protested. "But as for the story about your father—well, did he send you here?"

"No, he didn't send me. But I couldn't help seeing how disturbed he was, and—"

"Then he knew you were coming?"

"Why, yes," Judith was trying hard to understand what he meant by seeking out her father's knowledge of her present mission, one which was to her decidedly unpleasant.

Wheeler was plainly impressed, and unfavorably so, at the girl's reply.

"Oh," he ejaculated disappointedly. The quickly thinking girl detected the significant tone of the newspaper writer's reply and hastened to explain.

"I heard my father say at dinner that he feared there would be another attack tomorrow," she said, "and I hoped through you to prevent its publication and to make the Advance apologize for what it said this morning. I don't see how your paper dares to publish such things."

"But, Judith," he answered, "we couldn't dodge a story as big as that. We had to print it. That's what we're here for."

But she was still insistent.

"Oh, of course, print the story, but I mean the insinuation all through. Why, by using such unfair means newspapers can bring discredit on any one. Mr. McHenry refused to apologize. He wouldn't even tell me who wrote it. Do you know?"

Brand gave a violent start. At first, in low present mood, he hardly dared answer the girl. With a determined effort he pulled himself together and answered her question.

"Yes, I know who wrote it."

"Who?" Judith leaned toward him, gazing intently into his eyes.

"I wrote it," he announced.

Judith started back aghast.

"You, Wheeler? Why?" she cried hysterically.

"I had no choice." He struggled to maintain his grip on himself.

"You had no choice?"

"Judith, when this Lansing Iron case first broke loose," Brand responded firmly, "I saw straight off that it was one of the slickest—well, that there was a big story in it. I didn't know your father was involved in this at first. I just followed the path, and when I saw where it was leading me I wanted to turn back because of you, but I couldn't. He stopped for a moment, then went on: 'No, no. I could not stop—not even for you.'"

"But it isn't loyal of you," was her response. "It wasn't like you—to at-

SECOND CLASS CITIES MEET.

City Solicitor James Campbell, Jr., and Alderman Lackey left today at noon for Frankfort to attend the meeting of Second class cities, to represent Paducah.

Support in the fight for two bills, affecting cities of the Second class in Kentucky, will be given by the Paducah general council, which unanimously voted last night to back Mayor Smith and City Solicitor James Campbell in securing laws, making Paducah immune from law suits and also giving her the right to float special assessment bonds for improvements.

Every member of the general council was present except J. K. P. McCarthy. As to the commission form of government a vote taken to begin a fight for the new law was lost, as thirteen of the committee opposed it. Those in favor of it were Aldermen Hannan, Farley, Oehl-schlaeger, Stewart and Van Meter, and Councilman Budde.

As to the extension of the city limits, it was agreed that both the upper and lower boards at their regular meetings next week should call for an ordinance covering this, and City Engineer Washington was asked to prepare a map, showing the most thickly populated rural sections adjoining the city, these to be taken in on the extension. The extension is thought to be only a matter of a short time, and, if the people residing in the districts to be taken do not oppose the measure with a two-thirds vote it will go through.

MISS EDRINGTON NOT SUMMONSED

TRIAL OF HIRAM SMEDLEY MAY BE POSTPONED.

Case Will Be Called Tomorrow
Morning In Circuit Court.

ALL DEFENDANTS ACQUITTED

Trial of Hiram Smedley, former county court clerk, on the charge of forgery will be called tomorrow morning in circuit court. However, the commonwealth may not be ready for trial as Miss Lizzie Edrington, former county court clerk, has not been summoned, and Deputy Chas. Clark in court this morning said he has failed to find her. An attachment for her presence in court tomorrow was issued. Miss Edrington was a deputy clerk under Mr. Smedley and is an important witness for the prosecution.

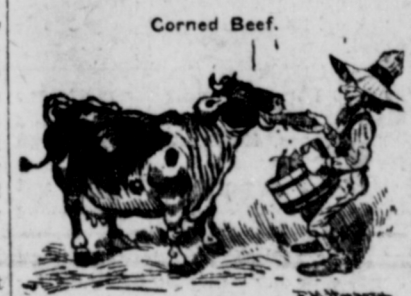

An uninteresting session of circuit court was held this morning, and the defendants were acquitted, making it a joyful day for them.

The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Abe Barrett, charged with cutting in sudden heat and passion.

Alexander Travis, colored, was acquitted of the charge of malicious cutting. He cut Wesley Pemberton, colored.

H. P. Flippo was dismissed of the charge of grand larceny. He was accused of taking a gun valued at $20 from Garner Brothers Furniture company.

The trial of Will Dinwoody, colored, charged with suffering gaming, was continued until the April term. W. A. King was excused as a petit juror and George Lehnhard was empaneled.

The statement caused surprise and enthusiasm among a large number of guests.

MRS. L. C. DALLAM

SUCCUMBS TO HER MALADY AT HENDERSON.

She Was Mother of Mrs. Muscoe Burnett, of This City, and Well Known Here.

Mrs. Lucien C. Dallam, of Henderson, died this morning at 6 o'clock at her home in that city after a short illness from asthma, of which she had been a sufferer for years. Mrs. Muscoe Burnett, her daughter, left yesterday at noon for Henderson, having learned of her mother's illness, but at 10 o'clock last night Mrs. Dallam was considered to be better, and the end must have come suddenly. Mrs. Henry Burnett, of Louisville, was also, with her mother, another daughter, did not reach Henderson until today. Besides her three daughters she leaves two sons, Mr. Clarence Dallam, of Louisville, and Mr. Charles Dallam, of Henderson, and the following grandchildren: Mrs. Robert Horner, Mrs. Grady Cary and Mrs. George A. Robinson, of Louisville; Lucien Burnett, Henry Burnett, Miss Mary Terry Burnett and Muscoe Burnett, Jr., of this city; George and Richard Cobb, of Chicago, and Charles Dallam, Jr., of Henderson. She is also survived by several sisters and brothers living in Henderson and Chicago. Mrs. William W. Powell and Mr. Lawrence Dallam, of Paducah are a niece and nephew.

Mrs. Dallam was greatly beloved in Henderson, and in Paducah, where she had frequently visited her daughters and had a wide circle of friends. She was a woman of wonderful charm of personality. A beautiful and gracious gentlewoman whose brilliant mind and kindly humor made her ever a delightful companion of old and young alike. She was Miss Elizabeth Soaper, of Henderson, and her family was a prominent one not only in Henderson county, but in Kentucky history. The famous Betsy Calloway, of old Fort Boonsborough, who married Richard Henderson, was an ancestress.

The funeral will not be held until Thursday. Mr. Muscoe Burnett will leave tomorrow for Henderson.

Mrs. M. B. Davis.

Mrs. Mary B. Davis, 73 years old, one of the best women of Hickman county, died, and her funeral was held yesterday, the Rev. D. W. Fooks, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, assisting. She was the widow of Gilson L. Davis. General debility was the cause of her death. Her acquaintance extended over every section of Hickman county, and for 40 years was a resident of the Mt. Zion neighborhood.

Mrs. Davis was survived by four children: Mrs. J. M. Wright, of Belerton; Mrs. John A. Latta, of Water Valley; W. L. Davis, of Amarillo, Texas, and Mrs. E. C. Latta, of Evansville. The Rev. D. W. Fooks and the Rev. J. E. Edwards preached the funeral.

McCann Funeral.
The funeral of John McCann, who died last week in El Paso, Texas, took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of his mother, 1129 Madison street. The Rev. D. W. Fooks, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, officiated. The burial took place in Oak Grove cemetery. The body arrived early this morning. Mr. McCann was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen and the organization attended the funeral in a body.

River Forecast.
The Ohio will continue rising for the next 24 hours.

River and Weather.
Gauge at 7 o'clock this morning read 14.7 feet, which was a rise of 4 feet in 24 hours. Weather clear and warmer.

Ice Drifts.

There will be no Tennessee river packet boat this week, as the Clyde was delayed in leaving Waterloo, Ala. She left there at 9 o'clock yesterday morning according to a telegram received by Wharfmaster Frank Brown last night and will bring in a big cargo of lumber tomorrow or next day. She will lie over here until next Wednesday, when she will resume her business.

The Kentucky is due from River-ton, Ala., Thursday afternoon or night and returns Saturday evening.

Ice is passing here thick and fast and all boats have tied up. The gorge at Carrsville, as expected, broke yesterday, but the heavy packs will not pass here until tonight or tomorrow. Rivermen expect ice to fill the river for over a week at the least as all the ice in the upper Ohio will pass by here. Gorges have broken at several points.

The towboat Lyda is in from the Tennessee river with a tow of ties. The Dick Fowler and the Ohio are tied up. The Ohio departed yesterday for the Cumberland river after a shipment of live stock but has not returned.

The river rose rapidly yesterday and was nearly at the 15 foot mark at 7 o'clock this morning.

Boats and barges in the local harbor have been made safe against the ice. However, the ice is several hundred yards beyond the Kentucky shore and at present shows no indications of endangering the wharf-boat or boats anchored near.

A special from Evansville says that ice floes sweeping down the Ohio river caught the towboat Love with two barges and a derrick boat at Mt. Vernon, Ind., and carried them downstream. The derrick boat grounded near Uniontown, Ky., while the Love passed the mouth of the Wabash.

The United States dredge boat Walker, moored at Brandenburg, was crushed to bits yesterday when the gorge at Wolfsville went out. Two barges sank down with the boat and all is probably a total loss. She was valued at $40,000. Rivermen are alarmed at the depth of the caked ice. It was between seven and eight feet thick today passing Paducah.

The thickest ice of the season is passing Memphis. Yesterday it was deep and thick and today is became worse.

The towboat Little Clyde left today for the Tennessee river after ties. The Chattanooga was dropped off the marine ways at noon and the towboat Cumberland is being pulled out for repairs.

Owing to the rapidly rising river the wharfboat was moved up at noon today. The Cowling is making her trips today.

A Pair of Ladies' Shoes Free

We intend opening an up-to-date ladies', misses' and children's shoe department in the early spring, the date of which will be published later. It is our desire to have three names submitted by the ladies to be used as a special brand for three different price shoes, $5.00, $4.00 and $3.50 quality. The first name selected by the committee will receive a pair of our $5.00 shoes, the second name selected will receive a pair of our $4.00 shoes, the third name selected will receive a pair of our $3.50 shoes. No name will be accepted already in use or registered.

A name bank of which we will stand with the Weille guarantee of absolutely dependable quality. Many manufacturers name their finished products and guarantee all goods sold under the name, but we are closer at hand than the manufacturer and satisfaction is absolutely certain.

Therefore we invite every lady to enter this contest and send in your guesses, remember there are to be three names. The advertising manager of The Sun and Weille's will decide the contest, which closes on Thursday, February 7.
